

IROQUOIS RESIDENCE

Design: ALTUS Architecture + Design
 Construction: Streeter and Associates

The site for this house is on ten acres of densely wooded property at the edge of a wetland. The client was seeking a home that balances contemporary spatial dynamics and the bucolic nature of the site, reflecting their lifestyle.

The house is designed to be a "sophisticated retreat" by rendering the exterior as a quiet north woods getaway with a bright, open interior. Moving under the entry canopy and into the tall entry space the plan is organized along an east - west circulation path which establishes a public/family realm to the south and the private realm to the north. The plan also is designed to locate spaces in relation to light throughout the day. Spaces which are occupied during the morning are oriented toward the east and evening spaces toward the west.
